Invitations to an organization:

To use an organization in Vaultwarden together with colleagues and share passwords within it, the owner of the organization must go to the Admin Console (bottom left) and then invite the appropriate people to the organization via “Members”:

Vaultwarden: Invite Members

Invited users will then receive a signed email from passwortmanager@tu-dresden.de containing information about the invitation and a request to join via the link provided

Vaultwarden: Mail: Invite to an Organization

As soon as the invitation is accepted, the organization owner—as the original sender of the invitation—receives an email notifying them of the confirmation and must then confirm the person in Vaultwarden, again via the member list. This makes the data shared within the organization visible to that person.

Vaultwarden: Overview of an Organization's Members

Note: Invitations are valid for 7 days. If users have not accepted the invitation within that time, a new invitation must be sent. To do this, use the “Resend invitation” option in the member list.

Vaultwarden: Resend invitation

Invitations as part of the automated migration from Passwork to Vaultwarden:

The “pwmgr” account passwortmanager@tu-dresden.de exported the vaults from Passwork and created them as organizations in Vaultwarden; subsequently, all members were invited and granted access accordingly.

The “pwmgr” account is therefore the owner of the organizations

Once the invitations expire, we (CERT) can send new invitations for the organizations via “pwmgr”

If you have already removed the user “pwmgr” and not all users in your organization have joined yet, please send new invitations to the relevant individuals yourself

In the member list, their status is “invited”
